

The image shows the interior of a church, focusing on a large, ornate wooden organ. The organ is the central feature, with many pipes and decorative panels. Above it is a large, multi-tiered chandelier with several glowing lights. The organ is set within a large, arched opening in the wall. The walls are painted a light blue color, and there are decorative elements like a banner that says "Glory" on the left and "1871" on the right. The lighting is warm and focused on the organ.
